

The Least Developed Countries Report 2010 views the excessive focus on promoting FDI and neglect of domestic investment as biased and counterproductive. Recognising the role of a vibrant domestic private sector in attracting foreign capital, it argues for catalytic support for private sector development and on increasing private sector participation in the provision of infrastructure.