

N'djamena hosted a joint World Bank-DFI DeMPA mission to assess the country's debt management performance. This mission was held in a context of the Chadian authorities' willingness to reach completion point and mobilise significant resources to finance infrastructure projects. The mission concluded that Chad's debt management shows (i) fragmented structures, (ii) poor coordination and information sharing, (iii) poor staff capacity and high turnover, (iv) non-existent comprehensive and reliable data, and (v) weaknesses in treasury management.
