

DFI associates have been conducting analysis of domestic financing issues for the past decade and this area of work has been growing in importance as low-income and middle income developing countries have been rapidly developing their domestic financial markets. As well as publishing on the key issues of domestic debt strategy and sustainability , DFI has also published analysis of fiscal sustainability

To help countries analyse alternative domestic financing strategies, DFI, as part of its work under the HIPC Capacity Building Programme, has designed a methodology for analysing the supply of government debt issuance for fiscal financing and monetary policy implementation and how to balance this with financial sector demand for domestic instruments. This methodology is part of the extensive training and capacity building materials .
