New Rules for Global Finance

DFI assisted New Rules for Global Finance to organise two recent events in New York and Washington DC. The first was a public panel in Washington, sponsored by the Heinrich Boell Foundation, in which representatives of the US government, developing countries and civil society examined Turkey's agenda for its Presidency of the G20 in 2015, where Senegal spoke on Francophone countries' priorities.

The second was a side-panel during the FfD events in New York, on Public-Private Financing Partnerships, at which Senegal presented its experiences of PPPs, together with representatives of the World Bank, civil society and the private sector.
